Commission to Assist Illiterates

Governor McCreary Proclaims Appointment of Commission Which Will Have Charge of Teaching School.

Governor McCreary has shown his interest in the education of the people of Kentucky and in the alleviation of the adult illiteracy of the State by his proclamation of the appointment of the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission. This Commission will do much toward the betterment of the people of the State by giving those who had not the present day advantages of education, a chance to learn to read and write. This splendid work has for some time been under the supervision of Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, and under her active leadership it is hoped that there will be no illiterates in the State in the course of a few years.

Following is the proclamation of the Governor:

At the last meeting of the General Assembly of Kentucky, I recommended that a Kentucky Illiteracy Commission be appointed and authorized to inquire into and alleviate the condition of the adult illiterates in the State, and Mrs. Cora Wilson Stewart, Chairman; Miss Ella Lewis, Secretary; J. G. Crabbe and President H. H. Cherry were appointed as members of the Commission. This Commission has inaugurated a State campaign, Mrs. Stewart being the netive leader in the efforts to stamp out illiteracy through moonlight schools and other methods. Upon their call for volunteers about one thousand teachers offered their services and are teaching or making arrangements to teach at night, and others are daily offering their services. The chairman and leader in this great work has informed me that the Kentucky Educational Association, the Kentucky Press Association, the Kentucky Federation of Women's Clubs, and the Society of Colonial Dames are taking much interest and are performing much valuable service, and that many other organizations in the State seem interested. The aim of the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission is noble and exalted and of the greatest benefit, and there is no subject of more importance or of far-reaching influence than the elimination of illiteracy from our State. We should educate all of our people, those under twenty-one years of age, and those upwards of twenty-one years of age. The perpetuity of our free institutions depends upon the intelligence and virtue of the people. There are 208,084 men and women in our State who cannot read and write, and of whose intelligent efforts along the lines of education, religion and general development and advancement the State is deprived, and this constitutes a deplorable situation and presents a great and urgent need which should be promptly met and relieved. Instruction should be offered to the mothers for their own sake and for the sake of their children and the benefit of the State; it should be offered to the fathers for their own sake and for the sake of increasing their earning capacity and promoting home comforts, and for the sake of a more intelligent exercise of the right of suffrage so as to help maintain good government for the State. Instruction should be offered to the young men and young women who have missed opportunities earlier in life, but may yet take hold of instruction and make achievements. The instruction of all the illiterates in the State will not only give to Kentucky higher rank, educationally, among the States, but will give her a new and distinct position as the first Commonwealth which has ever attempted to accomplish such a great and important work. I call upon all to help in the cause of education of those under twenty-one years of age and those upward of twenty-one years of age, and I appeal to every public and private teacher, every professor in our high schools, colleges and universities, all public officers, every representative of the press, every professional man, every farmer, mechanic and business man, and every woman who loves the blessings of education, and all who desire to promote religion, science, literature or art, or advance progress or improvement in any line, all who desire to lessen crime, to help in the great work of teaching adult illiterates, both male and female, to read and to write and spell and encourage them to seek knowledge and add to their acquirements by moonlight schools and by illuminated school houses where education is as free as the air we breathe, and where all may come to edify themselves and drink of the fountain of the water of life freely. In testimony whereof, I have caused these letters to be made patent and seal of the Commonwealth to be hereunto affixed. Done at Frankfort the 21st day of September, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and fourteen, and in the one hundred and twenty-third year of the Commonwealth.

JAMES B. MCCREARY,
Governor.
C. F. CREELIUS,
Secretary of State.

Day Company Makes Transfer Of Office

Receivers Considered That Jackson Would be More Advantageous Place For General Offices Of Company.

After considerable discussion as to the most suitable place for the general offices of the Day Lumber & Coal Co. to be located during the winding up process which is now going on, the receivers for the company finally decided that Jackson was more centrally located with reference to the other assets, and the offices were accordingly moved there this week. Clay City loses two good citizens by the move, Judge Luther Lovins and Mr. E. B. McGone both being transferred to Jackson. It has not been definitely settled yet whether the Company's store will also be moved or not, but it is probable that it will remain here. It is understood that the transfer is only a temporary one, and that the head office will be returned here shortly.

The day after the fire at Jackson last week the city council met and a fire brigade was formed for the protection of the property of citizens in the event of another outbreak of fire in the city. THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1914.

Some of our Republican friends have sought to attract votes for Willson for U. S. Senator, claiming that the Democrats are responsible for all the bad things that come to us. If it's the financial end of it that they are clamoring for, as they say, let us have a comparison of Willson and Beckham.

In 1900 J. C. W. Beckham became Governor of Kentucky. When he went into office he found the State with a bonded indebtedness of $500,000, all of which was incurred during the preceding Bradley Republican administration. Besides this form of indebtedness there was a large amount of floating debts. He was governor for seven years, during which time he cleaned up the bonded indebtedness of the State; laid aside one million for our new State Capitol, and left a nice balance of nearly one and one-half million to the State's credit when Willson went in as Governor, leaving the State to the good no less than three million dollars clear.

When Willson went into office succeeding Beckham, instead of finding a depleted treasury and a large bonded indebtedness, as Beckham following Bradley had found, he found a full treasury, and no bonded debts at all, and virtually nothing due against the State and unpaid. After four years of "winning and dining" in the East and North, frequently complaining of, and receiving the full compliments of the offices to which he was elected to fill, but which was mostly looked after by Lieut. Governor Cox, except when he was considering some pardons of some dignified (?) gentlemen (?) who had been in jail for seven years, he retired to private life. Governor McCreary being elected by 34,000 majority as a rebuke to his administration. He left the State in debt just as much as he found it ahead when he assumed control, leaving the State to the bad about three millions, or about as much to the bad as Governor Beckham had run it up to the good.

Thus you see a difference of six millions between the two men. There are forty-eight states in the Union and two U. S. Senators from each State. If there should be as much difference in the worth of all other Republican and Democratic Senators, measured from a momentary point of view, as in this case, there would be a difference of $176,000,000 in favor of the Democratic Senators.

If you are looking for the business-like Senator, you cannot throw Beckham down, for he certainly has done things for Kentucky, and he will do just as much for the Nation if given an equal showing. To be elected Governor in 1909 it was, of course, necessary to allure a lot of Democratic votes to Willson's support. He accordingly hatched up some sort of grievance for the old Confederate veterans, and made them believe he was their friend. It is claimed that by this deception Willson carried over one half their vote to his race. Fool Governor. And what did he do for them in return? When the legislature passed the Confederate pension bill, he vetoed it. He will again accord the same treatment to any Democrat who may walk into his trap and vote for him. The only use Augustus Willson has for Democrats, is their votes.

BULL MOOSE PARTY.

The Louisville Herald asks what has become of the erstwhile Bull Moose party which last year was so militant in Louisville, and goes on to say that in the recent registration there, the party showed a falling off of over seven thousand from last year, when there was over 13,000 registered. The registration of all parties was lighter than last year, but none showed the falling off that the Progressives have done, and none of the other parties appear to have gained materially by the slump. Republican leaders have been fondly hoping for a stampede of the Bull Moose to the G. O. P., but so far it has not materialized, and shows no sign of doing so. The Herald concludes by saying that the only plausible theory is that the untried ones have taken to the woods.

Judge Hobson, of the Kentucky Court of Appeals has recently issued a voluminous edition on Pleadings, and Judge Carroll, another Court of Appeals judge, is about to bring out a new edition of the Kentucky statutes. Both these books are very extensive and it takes a great deal of time and labor to complete them, but these judges have managed in some way to find time for this work in spite of the fact that the Kentucky Court of Appeals is nearly a year behind, and that there is nearly a million dollars of the people's money tied up in litigation. These judges draw from the State $5000 each, a year, which should be sufficient for STATEWIDE PROHIBITION.

There is not the slightest doubt but that Kentucky will soon vote on the question of State-wide prohibition, and preparations are being made now toward that end. The result of Virginia's action will be watched with great interest by both sides, and so far the results have shown that the action was a wise one. Kentucky is like Virginia in many respects. For years local option was tried, but it proved inefficient as the ten wet counties sent their product into the dry ones without any regard for the law. Finally the Legislature followed the whole state to vote on the question and the result was a majority of 35,000 for prohibition. The Old Dominion is now dry forever, and it will not be long until Kentucky follows suit.

The Clayton anti-trust bill, which has been before the House for some time, has at last been adopted. As the Senate has already agreed on it, it now goes to the President for his signature. One feature of the bill was the fact that 32 Republicans and six Progressives voted for it in addition to the solid Democratic vote, and it passed by 244 to 54. The purpose of the Clayton bill is primarily to fix the guilt on individuals connected with big corporations which violate the law, and to prohibit unfair price discrimination and interlocking directorates of competing companies, and also limits the interlocking of bank directors. It also prohibits the existence of holding companies which would tend to lessen competition and forbid exclusive and tying contracts. This act when enforced, will be of great benefit to the country, particularly to the farmers, who suffer most from the hands of the big corporations.

SO MUCH FOR FANATICISM.

A Kentucky editor with power of thought and gift of pen has directed a vicious attack upon prohibition and prohibitionists, and has brought into the argument questions of history which point to fanaticism and lunacy as a responsible factor in the well-meaning course of the conscientious advocate of prohibition.

This Kentucky editor is a gifted writer and his long years of experience in the Newspaper field has hardened him to the task of advancing the most logical arguments to suit the occasion. He is seeking now in terms utterly contemptible to reflect upon one of Kentucky's grandest women.

Mrs. Frances Beauchamp, the President of the Kentucky Women's Christian Temperance Union, is one of the objects of this vicious attack. For her interest in the furtherance of prohibition in the State this editor has classed her as a fanatic and a lunatic. Her efforts have been felt all over the State of Kentucky and the far-reaching power is gaining to closely on the heels of the liquor element and even their closest friends, to be of comfort, and from the pen one of our most eminent writers comes the startling statement that she in this respect is a lunatic.

Mrs. Beauchamp may in the opinion of some be a fanatic, because her whole life work has been devoted to the work. She grew into womanhood with a voice against liquor and has continued in her fight with a zeal and energy that is commendable. How many women in the United States have devoted the time to a single cause than has Mrs. Beauchamp to temperance? There may be scores but few of them have attained such nation-wide importance. Mrs. Beauchamp is an honest worker for temperance. To some her movements for temperance may appear fanatical. There can be no doubt of her sincerity. As a woman of scholarly attainments she has awakened interest throughout this broad land of ours; she has awakened the souls of hundreds and thousands of men and women who have rallied to her standard.

What is the result? It is plain to be seen: 107 counties out of 120 in the State in the "dry" column. Her aim now is State-wide prohibition. It has been demonstrated that in cities of the larger class in the State the prohibitionists are in the minority. There is but one course for the temperance people, and that is to secure a State-wide vote on the question, and knowing a vote upon the issue would settle it, the newspapers of these cities are endeavoring to dampen the enthusiasm that is growing daily Mrs. Beauchamp may not live to see the day when Kentucky will be "dry" but with all she will have the satisfaction of knowing that her work was well done and that she is more deserving of praise than condemnation. So much a reward for fanaticism.

HUSBAND RESCUED DESPAIRING WIFE

After Four Years of Discouraging Conditions, Mrs. Bullock Gave Up in Despair. Husband Came to Rescue.

Catron, Ky.—In an interesting letter from this place, Mrs. Bettie Bullock writes as follows: "I suffered for four years, with womanly troubles, and during this time, I could only sit up for a little while, and could not walk anywhere at all. At times, I would have severe pains in my left side.

The doctor was called in, and his treatment relieved me for a while, but I was soon confined to my bed again. After that, nothing seemed to do me any good.

I had gotten so weak I could not stand, and I gave up in despair.

At last, my husband got me a bottle of Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I commenced taking it. From the very first dose, I could tell it was helping me. I can now walk two miles without tiring me, and am doing all my work."

If you are all run down from womanly troubles, don't give up in despair. Try Cardui, the woman's tonic. It has helped more than a million women, in its 50 years of continuous success, and should surely help you, too. Your druggist has sold Cardui for years. He knows what it will do. Ask him. He will recommend it. Begin taking Cardui today.

Ingersoll on Life and Death.

Life is a narrow vale between the cold and barren peaks of two eternities. We strive in vain to look beyond the heights. We cry aloud and the only answer is the echo of our wailing cry. From the voiceless lips of the unreplying dead there comes no word; but in the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing.—H. G. Ingersoll.

CARD OF THANKS.

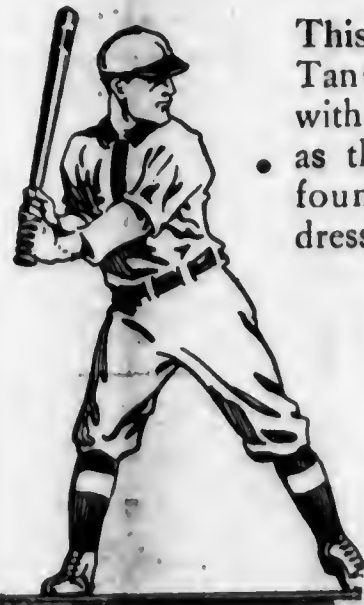

Whereas the Almighty God has seen cause to move from our home our kind, true and loving mother, Mrs. S. E. Smethers, on Oct. 8, that tender hand that has guided us through this life can guide us no more; her vacant chair can never be filled, but we can gladly say by her past life she has gone to heaven where sorrow and grief can be no more. No one can answer better for a mother than her children, and may we ever live as she has taught us and the time will not be long until we can meet her in glory.

We want to thank Dr. J. W. Williams and Dr. R. A. Irvine for their tender care of her for we know they did all they could, but the time had come for her to go home to the Blessed Master. We want to thank our many friends for their tender care to her and us during her short sickness, for it was a deed to another. We want to thank the Broadhead-Garrett Co. for the closing down of their mill during her death, and may the blessing of God rest upon them all.
